By ROBERT W. MAXWELL PHILADELPHIA BASEBALL PARK

May 30 .- Philadelphia is the home of busted and shattered records. Ted Meredith started it at Cambridge last Saturday, when he walloped a couple of old stand-bys on the nose, and our Phils kept up the good work this morning by putting a crimp in Mr. McGraw's aspirations.

The crimp was a 5 to 1 victory over the Giants and a perfectly good winning streak was smashed to smithereens. The visitors had won 17 straight games in a row and had won 17 straight games in a row and were out to make a new record.

Just as a matter of history, let it be remembered that another winning streak was wrecked in this same city some four years ago. Washington had annexed 17 straight wins on the road, and came here to play the Athletics. The Mackmen did as well as they could until the ninth loning when Baker busted one on the nose and the stuff was off.

stuff was off.

The game this morning was replete with excitement, thrills and everything else that goes to make up a good ball game. Both teams were out to win and speedy play

AL DESERVED SHUT-OUT.

Al Demaree was on the firing line and his work was worthy of special mention. He held the swatters from the Big Town to six hits, four of them going to Larry Doyle, the well-known captain and second base man. Our heroes, on the other hand, nicked Poll Perritt for seven safeties, four of them coming in the fatal eighth stanza. Demaree deserved a shut-out, but a brain-storm in the ninth upset the whitewash. Two men were out and Benny Kauff was on first.
Whitted walked away from the bag to play the batter, and the bag was unguarded.
Suddenly Demarce whirled around and hurled the ball to first. It was a beautiful peg, cutting the heart of the suck, and it went out to right field. Benny started went out to right field. Benny started around the bases and registered at the plate when Cravath recovered the pill. PERRITT TOSSES TO KAUFF.

Burns leaned against a twister and sent it to left field for a single. Eddle limped to first and there were shouts for Ted Mere-dith in the grand stand to take his place of the stand to take his place on the runways. Ted was not available however, and Dugey took his place. De-marce sacrificed and Perritt leaped into the air to spear the ball. He got it, rolling over on his back and threw to Benny Kauff in centrefield, instead of Fletcher, who was waiting at second to receive the Dugey went to third and scored when Bancroft bunted on a squeeze play, Ban-croft reaching first in safety. Niehoff then walloped a beautiful drive over Kauff's head for a triple, scoring Demarce and Bancroft. Bert was caught between the bags on the next play, when Stock bunted on an-other attempted squeeze play.

HOMER FOR CRAVATH. HOMER FOR CRAVATH.

But the worst is yet to come. Cravath, who up to this time had registered but one measily single, lifted one over the right field wall, and the last two scores came in. Claude Cooper, our new left fielder, made the feature play of the game in the seventh inning when he speared Merkle's drive to the left field bleachers with his gloved hand. It was the greatest catch ever seen on the home grounds and it nipped a batting rally in the bud.

The ball salled toward the two-bit

The ball sailed toward the two-bit patrons and it had "home run" written all over it. Cooper ran back, stepped on a couple of policemen and backed against the fence. Turning around, he took one good look at the flying sphere and lunged side

Peace, not grief, is the dominant note today. And it is fitting that peace should reign, for they whose graves we decorate and whose memory we honor today died for peace's sake. They gave their young lives for it, for us. Their lives were young, far younger than you or we would imagine, with the picture of the gray-haired veterans in our mind, unconsciously forming a conin our mind, unconsciously forming a concept of gray-haired men in blue charging across the battlefield toward a line of gray-haired men in gray. Yes, they were young-sters—from Lexington to Vera Cruz—when they gave up their lives.

The more honor to them for it.

CITY PAYS HONOR TO THE MEMORY OF HEROIC DEAD

Observance of the Day Marked by More Than Ordinary Fervor

"GLORY'S SOLEMN ROUND"

On Fame's eternal camping ground Their silent tents are spread, And Glory keeps with solemn round The bivougo of the dead. -Theodore O'Hara.

The "thin blue line" so many thousand strong that held the Union intact in 1861-65, decimated by death during the last year to a mere handful of its once proud strength today, is dutifully observing Memorial Day the 50th anniversary of the Grand Army

Ever since the beginning of the year when the 35 posts in this city showed only 2398 members, the death rate among the veterans has been unsually high, so that the decoration of their comrades graves must be left for the most part to the Sons of Veterans and kindred organiza-

out so far as they were able, the gray-haired remnants performing their labor of love. But in most causes the present en-rollment of a post, which once claimed its members by hundreds, could not muster a literal "corporal's guard."

But no grave of a fallen soldler went unadorned and no part of the day's observance in this city was neglected. On the contrary, today's celebration of Memorial Day promises to equal in every detail the proud record of the holiday in years past. And not only in this city, but in every State of the Union excepting Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Georgia, Mississippi, North and South Carolina and Texas, busi-ness is suspended and the people pause in

POLICE CHASE THIEVES ON ROOFS; BLOOD DRIPS AND TRAPS 'WINGED' ONE

Perilous Hunt Near City Hall With Thrills of "Movies.". Three Hours' Search for Men

BURGLARS LEAVE TOOLS

Over the roofs of the business block on Market street, from 13th street to City Hall and in its rear along Commerce street early today, Lieutenant Van Horn and a detail or policemen participated in a burgiar chase as thrilling and perilous as ever was staged in the darkened motion picture houses over which the fugitives and their pursuers stumbled.

stumbled.

Partial success rewarded the persistence of the police, who, after nearly three hours' house-to-house hunt, rounded up one of the men they sought, wounded and exhausted, on a skylight above the Globe Theatre Building, at Juniper and Market streets. A builet from a police revolver had compelled him to lag behind his companions who, by means of a fire-escape, are believed to have reached the arrest and dodged through rear alloys to safety.

reached the street and dodged through rear alieys to safety.

In addition to their prisoner, the police are possessors of three of the most costly and complets kits of oraclamen's tools ever seen here. These were dropped in flight on a fire-escape in the rear of a saloon building at 18th and Commerce streets.

Investigation showed that more than eight skylight entrances to buildings fronting on Market and 18th streets had been opened. The police of the 11th and Winter streets station house, in connection with the Detective Bureau, are endeavoring to ascertain if any of these piaces, most of which are closed on account of the holiday, was robbed.
